His latest album “Somebody, Somewhere” is set to release Fall 2017. It’s a collection of driving beats and catchy tunes that ride the line between rock and country. Based in St. Paul, Minnesota, Tim brings a distinctly mid-western sound to his songwriting; honest lyrics sung over big wide-open melodies and energetic grooves that will leave you saying “well now...that’s not too bad, don’t chaknow?”

Recorded at The Villa Studios with New Folk Records, Tim plays and records with a rogues gallery of musical talent, known as the Nomads:

- Mike Arturi - Percussion
  - John Wright - Bass Guitar and Sound Engineer
  - Dan Neale - Guitar
  - Toby Lee Marshall - Piano and Organ
  - Sarah Morris - Vocals
  - Katie Gearty - Vocals
  - Kevin Gastonguay - Piano and Organ

Past Album Guest Artists include:

- Peter Ostrushko, Dan Newton, Katy Vernon,
- Peter Mayer, Marc Anderson, and Phil Nusbaum

Tim has been performing for over 20 years. Using his degree in music composition from St. John’s University, five full-length solo albums, hundreds of shows performed annually, and an entrepreneurial spirit, he’s supporting a family of five with his lifelong passion for creating music. This foundation of experience allows him to help young people use songwriting to express themselves and promote wellness.

Tim founded Discover Music, a nonprofit that teaches middle and high school students how to write their own music. Songwriting is academically rigorous, socially engaging, and spiritually healing. His students learn to create music as a healthy way to process emotions and discover who they truly are.

He’s a steadfast advocate of the arts, education, and social justice causes. He loves to cook, do woodworking projects, watch sci-fi, and is a voracious reader.

Through Patreon, album sales are channeled directly into supporting his work in schools.
